Summer breezes into September's competition

The Summer Project is over for another year. This year's project 'Wind' is featured on the back page.

Also new this year is the Manipulated category. It gives Photoshop and similar programme users a chance to show their stuff. It should prove to be a very interesting category.

So the categories for this year or until revised are as follows;

Colour Print (including hand-coloured B/W prints).

Monochrome Print (including tinted, e.g. sepia toned).

Slide, should be mounted.

Manipulated (any image significantly altered from 'representational', whether by mechanical or digital means). Includes solarisation and many Photoshop modifications; does not include use of filters, exposure control.

Note that the "Manipulated" category is for evaluation, and may not continue throughout the year.

Any member may enter a maximum of three images per category.

Digital photography is accepted.

Judging

Three members who have not entered the competition will be chosen as judges. If necessary, a member who has entered may judge, but he will abstain from judging his own entries.
